Meteorological
Official talks
To Rotary Club

"Men will be a slave to the weather as long as he is unable to control it," Dr. T. J. Howe, of the meteorological department in Edmonton, told members of the Rotary club at the regular Thursday luncheon held at the Macdonald hotel. He told his audience, "Weather is something."

Weather forecasting, said the speaker, has not been a complete success. It is not so much the man, but a task for many men, plan, in meteorological stations all over the country, reporting day and night on weather conditions—wind, wind velocity, air pressure, clouds, cloud-types, visibility.

SKILLED WORK
A network of communications received reports from sending them to a forecast center where they are decoded. The work added the speaker, takes a highly trained personnel.

He spoke of the thrill that comes in this "most interesting life of all" to be in forecast with the day over, a snowstorm within a given time.

Weather, said Dr. Howe, affects lives; it affects work. It is the weather which controls the bombing, which controls the war. If the enemy is to be kept away from the coast, the weather must be kept as secret as possible.

Concerning the latter statement, the speaker told his listeners it was not a secret to those who required information concerning the weather, it was required in business. Such persons, with a good reason, were given the information they needed, he said.

EDMONTON INDEFINITE

No definite temperature could be given in Edmonton today. Actual temperatures were not the same in the business areas, where heated buildings were kept at a temperature, as in the residential sections. In the latter, a thermometer placed on the bumper of a car, there was found a difference of 10 degrees.

Along the city's waterfront on the river, the temperature was 10 degrees below zero.

Weather of the future can be beaten, he concluded. Millions of dollars in Canada can be saved after the war, by the continued use of an accurate system of meteorological stations. "People will not then have to gamble on the weather."

Patrols have been placed on the lists of dogs banned for consumption by dogs and other pets in British Columbia.

"I don't see any other," Kliner said. "I'll be here for eighteen today."

BIRTHDAY PRESENT
We found Helen enjoying the surprise. She had a wheel chair and she wore a blue negligee of which she was shyly proud. A birthday present, she said, was a new hat.

"Let's see your hat," she said. "It's a lovely one," she said. "I like it very much."

"It's Helen's eighteenth birthday," the nurse said to Kliner. "Would you care to see her?"

"Yes," Kliner said. "How is she?"

"She's a couple of days now. And then she said discouraged. Then, too, sometimes the memories that night."

"I'll be here for eighteen today," Kliner said. "I'll be here for eighteen today."

The Story of Dieppe

We were jammed pretty tightly into the room now. The Pole wasn't wounded—just tired. He sat down on the table and talked about the last time we had met. The guns were still firing, and bombs landed close enough to make your stomach muscles tighten the way they do when you're scared.

"Much better on shore," the Pole grinned. "You like my nose?"

"It's a beautiful thing, Butch," I assured him. "Who picked that name Smith out for you?"

"I did," he said proudly. "I got papers to prove it. Herbert Smith, British citizen."

"You're the toughest-looking guy named Herbert I ever saw," I told him, and he laughed with delight. I never met a Pole I didn't like.

QUENTIN REYNOLDS
They're very wonderful people.

"Hey, what's the matter with this fellow here?" Smith pointed to a Canadian who was lying on the table swathed in blankets. He had come in an hour or so before, half-conscious, but when we got his clothes off we couldn't find any wounds on him. The doctor said he was suffering badly from shock. He was intoning now in a steady murmur, and sometimes the words rose and fell clearly. "Hail Mary, full of grace, the Lord is with thee... Blessed art Thou amongst women..."

"He's praying, Butch. Pay no attention."

Smith caught the brandy bottle to the Canadian's lips. "Come on, soldier. Have a drink, soldier..." But the Canadian—his eyes half open but unseeing—continued steadily. "Blessed art Thou amongst women..."

The Pole shrugged his shoulders. "Some men feel better when they pray. Me—I feel better when I drink."

Paradoxically, I might point out very hastily that it seems to be a lot of drinking going on here. I've created an enormous impression. Nearly every man who came into the wardroom was chilled through, and the brandy that the Crowther was handing out was strictly medicinal. No more than two or three drinks of brandy. The doctor had ordered hot tea for them, but direct hit had smashed the stove in the pantry and had broken most of Crowther's crockery.

PLASTIC SURGERY
Smith sat there grinning, talking about his operation. Actually I know more about his operation than he did. I'd got a good handle on it. So I told him about it right from the beginning. I'd got a good handle on it. So I told him about it right from the beginning.

One of the assistant surgeons nudged me at that point in the operation and, chuckling, pointed to my photographer. Bob Capa. We were all, of course, wearing white gowns, caps and masks, and Capa's usually ruddy face was now a pale gray. The doctor and I helped him out into an anteroom.

BLACKED OUT
The Hungarian photographer, with me and Capa's cap of making himself inconspicuous even there in the operating room with Kliner's approval. I worked with a Greek nurse made up for Kliner. Capa is by far the best. By the time they wheeled the Pole in, Kliner and I were on our feet.

SPINAL ANESTHETIC
They had given the Pole a spinal anesthetic, and he lay on his back with his hands behind his head. He was a very sick-looking face because the nose had been broken in the landing, it seemed, half way up his right cheek. Yet even asleep, there was a grin on the Pole's face, and that somehow made you forget the hideous distortion of his face.

"This chap was hit by a German rifle bullet in Poland," Kliner explained. "It smashed his nose completely and spread it all over his face, as you see. Somehow he escaped serious damage, but the Pole himself had been with a Commando outfit, but people sent him to me to see what I could do. This nose all clogged inside with blood and bone, and the face is in no good at all for breathing. They want me to fix it so he can breathe properly. But the Pole himself had an additional request. He had a photograph of himself taken before his encounter with the rifle butt. He wanted a new nose that would look nothing like the one he had. I asked him why. He said he sometimes he hoped to be dropped into Poland by sea, and he didn't want anyone to recognize him."

Back in the operating room, Kliner was finishing up. He put the last small hemstitch in the wound, washed it carefully, and then he turned to me. "There's a difference. It doesn't look like the same Pole. I recognized it in this rather strange. The Pole's nose was broken in the landing, it seemed, half way up his right cheek. Yet even asleep, there was a grin on the Pole's face, and that somehow made you forget the hideous distortion of his face."

"I'll be here for eighteen today," Kliner said. "I'll be here for eighteen today."

"I'll be here for eighteen today," Kliner said. "I'll be here for eighteen today."

tion twice. Some involved dangerous operations, others, were, in his words, "routine surgery." There was a young dispatch rider who had been hit in the cheek by a bomb fragment. The ear had drawn up one side of his mouth so that he wore a perpetual, hideous grin. Kliner's knife worked busily for fifteen minutes, his needles for another ten, and the man would be normal.

EVERY TYPE OF WOUND
I walked through the wards of Kliner's hospital with Kliner. I looked at post-operative cases. All were the result of either bombing or shrapnel. Every type of skin graft was here, every type of war wound. In one woman's leg, there were eight wounds. They all look cheerful enough, I suggested to the nurse.

"Yes," she said thoughtfully, "considering the fact that there are only five legs among those eight wounds, it's a pretty good record."

"It's Helen's eighteenth birthday," the nurse said to Kliner. "Would you care to see her?"

"Yes," Kliner said. "How is she?"

"She's a couple of days now. And then she said discouraged. Then, too, sometimes the memories that night."

The Experts Say . . .

OTTAWA, May 10.—(C.P.)—Hunters from the experts for housewives on the home front.

Working Up Palates—Many of the meat dishes that patrons of forerunners enjoy are their flavor and clever use of seasoning. Laura Pepper, chief of the consumer section of the agriculture department, with an assortment of herbs and spices to add interest to meat dishes, is making a challenge to the ingenuity of all cooks.

There is a partial list of seasonings that go with meat; in their use, no one flavor should be allowed to predominate. They are: parsley, bay leaves, thyme, savory, garlic, marjoram, celery, onion, carrots, chives, chili powder and curry powder. These seasonings may be used with a variety of meats to be bread so is mint with lamb and sage with pork. Parsley and sage go well with veal or chicken, while cloves, horseradish and mustard lend with beef.

Victory Vitamins—Good nutrition says Marion Hartley, Nutrition Services, goes hand-in-hand with good flavor, and even if your very garden is only a victory window box, make it contribute to flavor and nutrition by planting it with parsley, chives and radishes. Parsley is of course rich in iron and vitamins "A" and "C." Chives and radishes also have more to contribute than flavor alone.

Entertain at Home—The Prices Board is asking Canadian housewives to restrict entertaining to their homes as far as possible. The board's consumer branch is receiving complaints from restaurants that many housewives—probably no without mounds—are lunching down town and aggravating already overcrowded conditions.

Many war workers, who cannot possibly get home for lunch, are being crowded out of their places to make way for social gatherings, and consequently it is suggested that those who can conveniently eat at home should do so.

Decorations and Conversation—Now that housewives are well well out of the way, homemakers are turning their attention to exterior decorations on verandas and in gardens. Need for conversation demands every ounce of the householder's ingenuity in refurbishing existing garden furniture.

Steady turnouts may be recommended to prevent corrosion through rust. Desk chairs with split seats, upholstered chairs need only a little carpentering and a strip of new canvas. Remnants of the sun-room drapes may not prove enough for a verandah cover, but pillows can be covered for bright color.

Springtime Weddings—Marrying off daughter no longer presents father's pocketbook with a problem—not that daughter cannot still take her marriage vows in the traditional long gown of cream or white.

However, long-sleeved gowns for members of the wedding party are "out" for the duration. Morning clothes for male members of the party are among the things of apparel no longer manufactured.

Tribute Paid to Mothers
By Civil, Army Officials
At Opening of Wings Club

No building or servicemen's centre constructed or organized by the mothers of men and women in the service received such a dedication. Such a place has already been dedicated by the spirit of sacrifice of the mothers, declared Hon. J. C. Bowen, lieutenant-governor of Alberta, at the official opening of the Navy, Army and Wings Club centre at 9602 Jasper Avenue, Thursday night.

Resigns Post

Recalling the historic words of Winston Churchill when he resumed the premiership of Britain in the dark days of 1940, Mrs. R. L. Hoar is president of the Air Force Mothers' Auxiliary.

The club and recreation centre is operated by the Edmonton Air Force Mothers' Auxiliary for members of His Majesty's services and Allied forces.

SERVE NOBLE CAUSE

The mothers of all Allied servicemen could rest assured of one thing, the lieutenant-governor said, and that is the sacrifices by their sons and by themselves could not be made in a nobler cause.

"It is a sacrifice in the sacred cause of freedom and for the preservation of the rights and dignity of humanity," Mrs. Hoar observed.

The speaker said he would like to welcome in particular the American guests of honor and U.S. servicemen who were present.

"We have always been pretty good friends, although we had some sort of a disagreement in about 1774," said Mrs. Hoar.

"And in addition to being pretty good friends we fight pretty well side by side when it comes to the pinch," she said.

In a short speech declaring the centre officially open, His Worship Mayor John W. Fry said he had personal knowledge of the struggle of Air Force Mothers Auxiliary and the many hardships before they secured a new place, after being forced to vacate their former club premises for technical reasons.

MOVE ADVANTAGEOUS

It's an ill wind that blows no good and I feel certain the auxiliary members are now glad they had to move," said the mayor in declaring the centre open.

"Next to the winning of the war, closer relationship between Canadians and Americans resulting from the struggle is one of our greatest hopes for the future," said John Randolph, United States Consul General in Edmonton.

Observing that American soldiers were marrying Canadian girls at an increasing rate, he recalled that North of Ireland men had been successful in "capturing" a large number of American girls early in the U.S. "occupation" of that island.

H. Brock Smith, chairman of the hotel and recreation committee of the war services council for northern Alberta, was chairman. He introduced representatives of the Canadian armed forces. Those conveyed best wishes of the services to the Air Force Mothers' Auxiliary.

Lieut. J. A. Dawson, commanding officer of H.M.C.S. Non-such, and Capt. E. Brown, M.M. E.D. area commandant, representing the Canadian Army, and Wing Commander C. G. Brown, representing the Canadian Air Force, were also present.

W. R. McLaren, M.C., general chairman of the convention, asked for full co-operation from the membership aiding the various committees.

A committee composed of W. J. Williams, W. R. McLaren and P. R. Bule, will interview the city commissioners with a view to having work on a new entrance to Jasper Avenue from the Memorial Hall rushed to completion. The city has indicated this work will be left until after the war.

Causes of War
Outlined to Meet

Causes of the war were discussed by Dr. Ross Collins, member of the history department, University of Alberta, at the Post-War Planning Group, which met Thursday night at the local "Y".

Dr. Collins spoke on the topic "Between Two Wars." Effects of the depression on German politics were explained in showing the rise to power of Hitler. The Nazis "cashed in" on the turmoil of the times to establish their plan. Dr. Collins said.

Similar conditions, he also pointed out, have been built up in Russia.

Only statement during that depression period who understood the Russian threat was Stalin of Russia. Dr. Collins declared.

Commenting on the possible future relations with Russia, the speaker stated that "our Soviet ally is not ambitious in the world arena" and "he is definitely our friend."

Next meeting of the Post-War Planning Group, held in conjunction with the "Commission to Study the Organization of Peace" will be held Thursday, May 27, at 8:15 p.m. at the Y.M.C.A. Discussion topics are "Famine and Disease in the Post-War World."

Melvin Macklin is president of the group, with Merle Harris, secretary. Other members of the executive are Phyllis Francis, Olive Gage, and Muriel Neal.

On Saturday office hours are from 9 a.m. until 12 noon.

OFFICE RESERVED
A separate office is reserved for interviewing women recruits at the barracks in Ross flats.

Writer Catherine Kelley is on duty each day to answer all inquiries concerning service in the Wrens.

Landrobes are urgently required by the W.R.C.N. Previous training is not necessary and girls will work with modern equipment in up-to-date surroundings at a coastal training station.

Third Officer Rich will make a recruiting tour of the north and will later visit Waskiaiwini and Camrose.

the hour of receiving the salute. She readily agreed.

Of course there are probably precedents for the incident, but at any rate it's a trifle unusual on the prairies for a woman naval officer to be at the saluting base when a body of seamen in training march past.

And another thing that makes it all the more unusual to our land-lubber mind is the fact the incident occurred in a coal mining town, far, far from the mighty oceans, where the proud ships of the navy ply the waters of the deep.

But these are strange and wonderful, if terrible times. The oceans are no longer distant when a plane can hurtle from sea to sea ahead of the very flashing sun on high. And the lads from the lone prairie are proving them selves equally at home on the bounding wave, true "seadogs" of the deep in the greatest war in history.

Interest in naval service for young women is quickening. The navy, we think, is showing the wisdom gained through the centuries in the organization and recruitment of women for the first time in history.

No attempt is being made to dazzle the young women of Canada. There is a commendable frankness displayed at all times to the prospective recruit. The right types are thereby attracted.

Freedom's Fires Must Be Fed Our Coal!

CANADIANS must dig and deliver coal that we may sail convoys, power vital war plants, keep our railroads rolling, preserve the nation's health!

The coal mining industry—miners and management alike—have done wonders to provide coal, but they need help. More workers must be provided, or we falter—possibly fail—in this grim hour. Nature has been generous but we must help ourselves. Our mines are rich, but undermanned.

By Proclamation, His Excellency the Governor General in Council has declared that labour supply for coal mines ranks as a national emergency. Further, in order to provide manpower for coal, the Governor in Council has issued an Order in Council aimed at swelling the flow of coal from mine to firepot.

This Order is of vital interest to everyone in Canada. Every Canadian should read and study its provisions, to see whether it demands any action on his part.

- 1 EVERY EMPLOYER, REGARDLESS OF HIS INDUSTRY, must advise his employees of these Regulations, and he must assist in discovering whether any of his employees have had previous experience as coal mine workers.
- 2 EVERY EMPLOYEE, REGARDLESS OF HIS INDUSTRY, who has had previous experience as a coal mine worker, must report that fact to his employer not later than Tuesday, May 25th, 1943.
- 3 A "COAL MINE WORKER" FOR THESE PURPOSES is anyone who, since January 1st, 1935, has worked under provincial certificate or license in or around a coal mine, or who, since the same date, has been employed for a total of at least 24 months in the production of coal (except at office work).
- 4 EVERY EMPLOYER, NOT A COAL MINE OPERATOR, must report in writing to a Selective Service Officer not later than Tuesday, June 1st, 1943, full details on any of his employees who are ex-coal mine workers.
- 5 SELECTIVE SERVICE OFFICERS ARE AUTHORIZED to require ex-coal mine workers to report for interview and to accept work at a coal mine.
- 6 SELECTIVE SERVICE OFFICERS MAY REQUIRE any man in any employment, if subject to Mobilization Regulations but rejected for Military Training, and certain others excused from Military Training, to accept employment at a coal mine.
- 7 NO COAL MINE OPERATOR may terminate the services of any coal mine worker without written permission from a Selective Service Officer.
- 8 NO COAL MINE WORKER may leave employment at a coal mine without written permission from a Selective Service Officer.
- 9 EVERY EX-COAL MINE WORKER, returning to the industry under these Regulations, will be paid wages at the established rate for the job at which he is placed; and the Government will pay wages of 40 cents an hour, 8 hours a day and 48 hours a week, to any ex-coal mine worker required to leave his present employment under these provisions, but not placed immediately at coal mining.
- 10 A BOARD ALLOWANCE of not more than $7.50 a week may be paid an ex-coal mine worker now returning to a coal mine, if required to live away from the residence of his dependents.
- 11 PRESENT AND FUTURE COAL MINE WORKERS will be granted postponement from Military Training to February 1st, 1944, by virtue of their occupation; and no coal mine worker will be accepted for voluntary enlistment in the Armed Forces of Canada, prior to February 1st, 1944, except under permit to enlist from a Selective Service Officer.
- 12 NO EMPLOYER IN CANADA, EXCEPT A COAL MINE OPERATOR, may solicit for employment or hire any ex-coal mine worker.
- 13 REGARDLESS OF ANY DOMINION OR PROVINCIAL LAW, male persons at least 16 years old may be employed as coal mine workers, and female persons at least 18 years old may be employed as surface coal mine workers.
- 14 WAR EMERGENCY TRAINING CLASSES will be available for training men as coal mine workers.

Such is the substance of the new regulations. Full details may be had at any Employment and Selective Service Office. If these provisions require action on your part, you are urged in the national interest to act immediately. Severe penalties are provided for non-compliance, but the Government relies on the co-operation of the citizens of Canada to make prosecution unnecessary by prompt action as required. This is a grave emergency. Assist if you can.

BETH CARTER, WAAC

By LORETTA COOPER

THE STORY: Beth Carter, WAAC and Major Brit Jackson have landed on the Pacific beach. Beth is a member of the Coast Artillery Battalion, and Major Jackson is a member of the 1st Marine Division. They are both in the line of duty. Beth is a very pretty girl, and Major Jackson is a very handsome man. They are both very brave and very smart. They are both very much in love with each other. They are both very much in love with each other.

CHAPTER V

MAJOR JACKSON had then studied her. "I can't give you much information now, but if you could take a stroll later, I'd like to talk to you. We could walk in a few hundred yards to get the kinks out of our leg muscles."

"It's a date," said Beth, surprising herself with the informality of her tone. She caught herself, and resumed a military manner of speech. "Then, sir, I'll meet you at your office in half an hour."

The half hour was well employed refreshing herself. A last glance in the mirror which someone had thoughtfully hung on the wall of her room told her that the still was capable of making herself attractive. Not even a G.I. mirror could hide that.

She reached the meeting place on the minute, and Major Jackson was there.

"Lieutenant Carter, it's time you and I held another truth session. Maybe if we did, it would smooth both our paths and save us a lot of embarrassment later."

"I'm glad you feel that way, sir," Beth said.

"You don't need to say sir like that all the time," Major Jackson expostulated. "I'll treat you courteously and I know you'll treat me the same way."

"I'm a junior officer, Major, and I have every respect for your rank. It seemed so stiff and formal that it amused even Beth, who meant it most seriously."

The major laughed.

"You girls certainly have a great sense of humor."

"You're smarter than I gave you credit for," Major Jackson said. "Well, the ground rules here are that military courtesy is observed, but not in any ridiculous extreme. We live in a very close area, so as to make sure we meet for the first time during the day, and then don't salute any more unless there is a social reason. Were something like a submarine crew out here."

LAFF A-DAY

"There's no plane, miss. That's just my heart beating!"

CURIOUS WORLD

THE WHITE CHALK CLIFFS OF DOVER, IN ENGLAND, HAVE MADE UP OF FOSSILIZED SHELLS OF ANIMALS SO SMALL THAT OVER A MILLION ARE REQUIRED TO FORM A CLAMP OF CHALK.

350 CARLOADS OF LUMBER COULD BE LOST IN THE MATCH STICKS USED IN THE UNITED STATES AND WERE SHORTER ONLY ONE FOURTH INCH.
